there in the Cincinnati market an average of three dollars per bushel, or an aggregate of over $10,000. Deducting the expense of gathering and marketing, the net product was $9,000. The crop was from an orchard of ten acres, with the exception of about one-eighth of that amount from a second orchard, just commencing to bear.

Mr. L. stated that on their grounds the Mr. L. stated that on their grounds the peach crop had failed only four times in the last ten years. Such an instance of success is well worth recording in this season of general failure; and is calculated to inspire other fruit growers with the hope that like good fortune may yet be

Mr. L. was on a visit to the Columbu Nursery, for the purpose of engaging fruit trees for starting a son in the business, upon a farm in Pickaway Co. He intends planting pears largely, with the peaches, for market purposes, believing, as we also do, that with a judicious selection of rarieties, and proper culture, the pear crop will be found more reliable, and in the long run as profitable as the pench. ANOTHER "FAST" YOUNG MAN A MER-DERER .- The Cincinnati Gazette gives the particulars of a murder committed in that city on Saturday evening by a son of a wealthy citizen of Cincinnati. Three young men sons of wealthy and prominent business men—named Charles Cook, son of the elder member of the firm of Cook, Adams & Co., lumber dealers; William Seiter, son of Geo. Seiter, baker, and Wm Swift, son of one of the firm of Pendleton, Swift & Co., dry goods merchants, visited a house of ill-repute. Seiter got into an alterestion with a woman named Kate Beareau and knocked the woman down a number of times, beating and kick-ing her brutally. Cook took part in the affair and also knotked the woman down, finally drawing a knife, and stabbing her horribly. The scene then is described by the Gazette thus:

The wounded woman who was covered with blood, lived perhaps twenty minutes.

After the fatal blow was struck, she raised herself partially from the floor by one elbow upon a lounge, and called for a glass of water, which, with a spasmodic effort, she threw into her mouth, and then, with an oath, exclaimed to Cook, "You have stab bed me." A minute after, one of the girls bent over Kate, and told her she could not five, and advised her to pray. The sin stained cortezan, in that hour could realize the necessity of prayer—of asking forgive-ness for the manifold transgressions of her erring sister, whose spirit was rapidly pass-ing to its final account! And the rictim of the "liberty of the knife" did pray-while the gapping wound in her side gave utter-ance to a breathing sound with every word that was uttered! She proyed for herself, for her husband and child, and sank into the arms of death with a prayer still upon her lips. What a scene for a brothel? The young men were arrested, and the murder has created intense excitement.

Sad Accident at Oberlin.

On Saturday last Mr. Ransom Gaston met with an accident which caused his death on Sunday afternoon, at about one o'clock. Mr. G. was driving a team, with a load of Jumber into the yard of his brother, Mr Rufus Gaston, when one of the burn struck the gate post, and threw Mr. G. from the wagon. He fell between the horses, and for a few minutes kept himself from getting under their feet; but as they became frightened, they ran with increasing velocity, and Mr. G. was soon dragged senseless on the ground. They leaped a high fence, breaking it down, in their way; and there threw from the lumber a little son of Mr. Rufus Gaston' who was taken up with both of his arms broken, and otherwise badly bruised. Mr. Gaston did not recover his consciousness, a concussion of the brain having taken place. He leaves a wife and two children. His ngod parents had for years made their home with him, and their deep affliction; as well as that of his own family, and of his brothers, Messrs. Rufus and Marshal Gaston, of Oberlin, has called forth the sincerest sympathy of that community.

A BAD PRESCRIPTION .- In the midst of the prostration of the Democracy, it is lamentable to hear to hear the quack prescriptions by which the Administration or gans propose to resuscitate the party. They reason like the empiric who thought that as pork and cabbage had made his patient sick, plenty more of pork and cabbage would restore him to health. The American people have had too much to nauseate them. They are serfeited with Lecomp-ton tests and English Bill finalities. It is the height of folly to advance the idea that on the principle of establishing one ratio of population for the admission of free States, and another for the admission of slave States, the Democracy can go fordrine was so edious that it was repudiated by its own authors and creators, and not a man of them dared to go frankly before the people of the North to advocate and sustain it previous to the late election.—Phil.

THE VINTAGE IN ITALY.—The Florence correspondent of the Providence Journal

writes:

"In spite of all the poctry of grape-gathering and grape-cating, even in Italy we find that the second geod-sized bunch will set the teeth on edge. In our untraveled innoceace, we imagine that the clusters we see in our bot-houses and horticultural exhibitions but imperfectly typify the ponderous development and luxuriant abundance of this fruit in grape-growing countries. I have not yet seen, either in the markets or grape-yards of Southern the markets or grape-yards of Southern Europe, anything that would compare with the fruit displayed at our annual shows."

The Cleveland Herald has been telling big stories about potatoes. It says P. D Gardner, of Middleburgh, harvested is year, forty-five bushels of potatoes from fifth an acre. It tells also of a C. G. Warner of Chatham Centre, who raised the to offer you. These are big stories, and Qhio is a great Sinte. But the Herald save new that Sch Barlett, of Strongsville, an old farmer advantage to affect Victory.

of sixty five years, raised from eight rods of ground twenty-five bushels of Cazenovia potatoes. We have no doubt Mr. Barlett as a good houest farmer, and we know the Herald is a very nice paper, but that's a great many potatoes for so small a patch!—
